This letter is to notify you of the loss of your child's personally identifiable and protected health information, and Science Applications International Corporation's (SAIC) offer of free identity theft restoration services for the period of one year.

SAIC is a government contractor supporting the TRICARE Management Activity (TMA). On September 14, 2011, a SAIC employee reported that computer backup tapes containing your child's information were stolen from his vehicle in San Antonio, Texas. Backing up information to these tapes and transporting them for storage in a remote location is a routine procedure to save important data and is a specific contract requirement for SAIC. Upon discovery of the theft, we promptly notified law enforcement and designated government agencies.

The information contained on the tapes may include names, Social Security Numbers, addresses, dates of birth, phone numbers, appointment information, diagnoses, treatment information, laboratory tests, radiology results, prescriptions, provider names, provider locations and other patient data, but does not include any financial data, such as credit card or bank account information.

The chance that your child's information could be obtained from these tapes is low since accessing, viewing and using the data requires specific hardware and software. We engaged law enforcement to attempt to recover the stolen backup tapes.

At this time, we have no evidence to indicate the data on the backup tapes has been accessed, viewed or used by others in any way. However, we know how concerned you may be and to assist you, SAIC is providing you, on behalf of your child, with free, one-year access to Kroll Inc.'s Enhanced Identity Theft Consultation and Restoration services. In most circumstances, a credit reporting agency will not maintain a credit report on a minor. If you are concerned that your minor child's identity has been used without authority, you will have twelve months from the date of this letter to use Kroll's services, which will provide you with access to Licensed Investigators who understand the problems surrounding identity theft and who are available to answer your questions and offer their expertise regarding any concerns you may have. If your minor child is affected by this incident, your investigator will work with you to help restore your child's identity to pre-theft status.

We take this potential data compromise very seriously and deeply regret that this incident occurred. Should you have any questions or concerns regarding this incident, please contact our Incident Response Call Center, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Eastern Time at the following numbers: United States, call toll free: (855) 366-0140; International, call collect: (952) 556-8312. Please use the following identification number when calling A03167573.

Sincerely,

Walter P. Havenstein
Chief Executive Officer

IDENTITY THEFT PREVENTION INFORMATION & U.S. STATE DISCLOSURES

Monitor Credit Reports, Monitoring Alerts and Accounts: When you receive credit reports, monitoring alerts and account statements, you should remain vigilant for incidents of fraud and identity theft by looking them over carefully and monitoring them for unauthorized activity. For example, look for accounts you did not open, unauthorized purchases, inquiries from creditors that you did not initiate and personal information that you do not recognize, such as a home address or Social Security number. If you have concerns, call the credit reporting agency or provider of your account at the telephone number on the credit report or account statement. If you do find suspicious activity on your credit reports, you may contact Kroll using the toll-free telephone number listed in the accompanying letter. You may also call your local police or sheriff's office to see if you may file a police report of identity theft and to obtain a copy of the police report. In the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you have a right to obtain a police report if you are a victim of identity theft. Potentially, you may need to give copies of the police report to creditors to clear up your records.

The Federal Trade Commission as a Resource: The FTC provides guidance to help you deter, detect and defend against identity theft. You also may report suspected identity theft to the FTC.

Obtain Free Credit Reports: Even if you do not find any signs of fraud on your reports, we recommend that you check your credit report regularly. Each of the three credit reporting agencies must provide you annually with a free credit report, at your request made to a single, centralized source for the reports, AnnualCreditReport.com. You are not required to order all three reports at the same time; instead, you may rotate your requests so that you can review your credit report on a regular basis. In addition, many states (e.g., Iowa, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, Vermont and West Virginia) have laws that require the credit reporting agencies to provide you with a copy of your credit report, free of charge, whether or not you suspect any unauthorized activity on your account.

Fraud Alert: You may ask the credit reporting agencies to place "fraud alerts" in your file to let potential creditors and others know that you may be a victim of identity theft. A fraud alert can make it more difficult for someone to get credit in your name because it tells creditors to follow certain procedures to protect you. It also may delay your ability to obtain credit. You may place a fraud alert in your file by calling just one of the three credit reporting agencies. As soon as that agency processes your fraud alert, it will notify the other two, which then also must place fraud alerts in your file. An initial fraud alert stays in your file for at least 90 days. An extended alert stays in your file for seven years. To place either of these alerts, a credit reporting agency will require you to provide appropriate proof of your identity, which may include your Social Security number. If you ask for an extended alert, you will have to provide an identity theft report. An identity theft report includes a copy of a report you have filed with a federal, state, or local law enforcement agency.

Security Freeze: You also have the right to place a security freeze on your credit report. A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may be able to use an online process, an automated telephone line or a written request. If you choose to send a request to a consumer reporting agency by certified mail, overnight mail, or regular stamped mail, the following information must be included when requesting a security freeze: (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past five years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, display your name and current mailing address, and the date of issue. The consumer reporting agency may charge a fee of up to $5.00 to place a freeze or lift or remove a freeze, unless you are a victim of identity theft or the spouse of a victim of identity theft, and you have submitted a valid police report relating to the identity theft incident to the consumer reporting agency. You may place a security freeze at any one or more of the following consumer reporting agencies:

For residents of Iowa, Oregon, Maryland, and North Carolina: Iowa state law advises you to report any suspected identity theft to law enforcement or to the state's Attorney General. Oregon state law advises you to report suspected identity theft to law enforcement and the Federal Trade Commission. The Maryland and North Carolina Offices of the Attorneys General will provide you with information about the steps you can take towards preventing identity theft:
